COUNCILLOR CONDUCT COMMITTEE - 6.7.2017

Jayne Middleton Albooye (Acting Assistant Director - Legal and Governance and Monitoring Officer) presented the information to members, highlighting the following:

- Complaint 00A – Following the appeal heard by the Committee on 22 May 2017, the complainant referred the complaint to the Local Government Ombudsman. The Ombudsman considered the complaint and decided not to investigate. There is no further appeal.
- Complaints 001 and 002 have been concluded, the outcome communicated to the complainants and we are waiting for their responses. These will be reported back to the next meeting.
- Complaint 003 was received on the 4 May 2017. Councillor Savva, the subject of the complaint, apologised and the complaint was withdrawn.
- Complaint 005 was currently being investigated by Jayne Middleton Albooye, herself.
- Complaint 006 was still under investigation, as additional people had had to be interviewed. It would be concluded shortly.

AGREED

1. To note the updates.
2. That up to date social media training, for all members as recommended by the Committee following consideration of complaint 00A, should be included in the current Member Training schedule.

REPORT BACK ON INDEPENDENT PERSON TRAINING

Christine Chamberlain (Independent Person) reported back on training she had received in March 2017 organised by Hoey Ainsclough, specialists in councillor conduct issues:

Christine Chamberlain highlighted the following:

- Hoey Ainsclough had carried out a survey to assess the numbers of complaints being considered across the country. In terms of numbers Enfield seemed to have fewer complaints than other authorities. Many complaints overall came from parish councils: a layer of government which doesn't exist in Enfield.
- Other councils have used formal mediation to resolve complaints, rather than carrying out investigations which can be costly, and not very effective as there are very few sanctions which can be employed. It was suggested that we look into this option for Enfield.
- Some councillors, in other authorities, had been reported to the police and prosecuted for failure to declare disclosable pecuniary interests, which is a criminal offence.

COUNCILLOR CONDUCT COMMITTEE - 6.7.2017

- At the training there had been some debate about whether hearings should be held in public or private. Different authorities did things differently. There were benefits and disadvantages to both approaches. It was generally agreed that it was more open and transparent to hold hearings in public, although it was also useful to have the opportunity to hold some discussions on the case in private, reporting the final outcome in public.
- Jayne Middleton-Albooye advised that there were very few instances when members had a disclosable pecuniary interest which could result in criminal proceedings.

AGREED to note the feedback from Christine Chamberlain and that the option of using an official, accredited mediator should be explored further.
